BRYAN IS DEAD

Three Times Candidate For Presidency; Victim Of Apoplexy.

William Jennings Bryan was discovered dead in bed at Dayton, Tenn., Sunday afternoon by a servant. He had retired to his room in the early afternoon to a nap and was found dead at 4.30 o'clock. Apoplexy was given as the cause of death. He was in the best of spirits and expressed himself as "feeling fine" when he retired shortly after lunch, about 1.30 o'clock. He had attended services at Southern Methodist Episcopal church before lunch and had partaken of a hearty meal before retiring to his room.

Mr. Bryan was the nominee of his party for President three times, establishing a record. In 1896 he was defeated by McKinley, 271 to 176 electoral votes. The popular vote was: McKinley 7,035,638, Bryan 6,447,546.

In 1900 he was again the Democratic standard bearer and was again defeated by McKinley. The electoral vote was: McKinley 292, Bryan 155. The popular vote was: McKinley 7,215,530, Bryan 6,358,071.

In 1908 he was the Democratic nominee against Taft, and for the third time went down to defeat. The electoral vote was: Taft 281, Bryan 162. The popular vote was: Taft 7,679,066, Bryan 6,409,106.

THE MONTEPELIER MEMORIAL

Movement Begun by Gen. Knox Chapter Given National Impetus; Secretary Mellon Sends Check for $1,000; Reception Tendered To Mrs. Annie Waldo Lord, President of Knox Memorial Association, Inc.

Back in 1915 a few patriotic Thomastons dared dream that some day there would be erected in that town a memorial that would do justice to its most famous citizen; that some day another "Montpelier" would arise and that descendants of former generations would again tell of the glories which were Thomaston's in the days of Gen. Henry Knox.

In the Congregational church at Thomaston Saturday there was another gathering in the interests of this memorial—and the occasion was an inspired one, for it was the anniversary of Gen. Knox's birth; the sun shone and the town never looked prettier or more peaceful.

It was a fit setting for day dreams, but dreams and visions had given place to materialistic action, and with this first annual meeting of the Knox Memorial Association, Incorporated, the movement which had its inception a decade ago, assumed a more concrete form and suddenly blossomed from a local effort into a campaign of nation-wide character.

There was an air of decided practicality in all the proceedings, and the enthusiasm of the workers reached its climax when Mrs. Herbert M. Lord, president of the Association, announced that an unsolicited gift of $1000 had been made by Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury.

The Association also gathered cheer from the heartening messages which came from men and women of national fame, the list being headed by the President and Vice President of the United States. The keynote of those messages was found in the utterance of President Coolidge: "We cannot permit the old landmarks and hallowed relics to pass away."

Major General Henry Knox

The meeting was called to order shortly after 10 o'clock by Mrs. Lord, who called upon the chaplain, Mrs. Levi Seavey, to read from the Scriptures, and lead the assemblage in the Lord's Prayer.

It gives me great pleasure to be here today," said Mrs. Lord in her annual address, "and as president of Knox Memorial Association, Inc., to welcome the officers and members to this, its second annual meeting. I feel it an honor to be president of an organization whose purpose it is to erect a suitable memorial to a great patriot, Gen. Henry Knox, in which will be gathered and preserved for posterity the priceless relics of his life and services."

"It is hoped to make this movement one of national scope to give this generation the privilege and opportunity to express through this memorial its grateful appreciation of the services of Gen. Knox to the country, and testify to its belief in the principles for which he fought."

"Vice President, now" President Calvin Coolidge, in an address before the Kenmore Association of Fredericksburg, Virginia, said: "We need not only the story but the symbols of past history. We can best preserve our institutions by preserving our confidence in the men who did so much to establish them. It is only when men begin to worship that they begin to grow. A wholesome regard for the memory of great men of long ago, is the best assurance to a people of a continuation of great men to come, who shall still be able to instruct, to lead, and to inspire. A people who worships at the shrine of true greatness will themselves be truly great."

"This truth is an inspiration to endeavor. As I have said, it is planned to make this movement national-wide. Gen. Knox does not belong to Thomaston; he does not belong to Maine; nor to New England. He belongs to the nation."

"President Coolidge recognizes the importance of the work we are doing as voiced in the following letter: The White House, Washington, June 4, 1925.

My dear Mrs. Lord: Please accept my thanks for the information you have furnished me regarding the plan of Knox Memorial Association, Inc., to erect in Thomaston, Maine, a suitable memorial to General Henry Knox, Washington's Chief of Artillery, and the first Secretary of War and Navy. The erection of such a memorial in Thomaston, the home of General Knox and the place of his interment, housing as it will much of the original Knox furniture and other Revolutionary relics, is a most worthy enterprise that should have the interested and positive support of all patriotic Americans. We cannot permit the old landmarks and hallowed relics to pass away. They breathe such a spirit of service and sacrifice, teach such lessons of patriotic duty, that their preservation is of surpassing importance. I wish you and your organization a full measure of success in your commendable effort.

Sincerely yours,
[Signed] Calvin Coolidge.

"Vice President Daves has also endorsed the movement as follows:

The Vice President's Chamber, Washington, June 16, 1925.

My dear Mrs. Lord: I am very glad to know of the commendable purpose of General Knox Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in organizing the Knox Memorial Association, Inc.

The name of Washington will ever live, but the American mind is full of his recollection of many of those associated with Washington in the founding of the Republic. One of these associates who contributed much was General Henry Knox, Chief of Artillery of the Continental Army, and the nation's first Secretary of War.

It is regrettable that "Montpelier," the home of Gen. Knox at Thomaston, Maine, has not been preserved. The efforts of the Knox Memorial Association to restore this estate, to rebuild the Knox house and to perpetuate the memory of one of the nation's founders should be encouraged and I am glad to enlist in support of the movement which so worthily has been instituted.

Very sincerely yours,
[Signed] Charles G. Dawes.

"Encouraged by the specific endorsement of our worthy President and Vice President of the United States we should redouble our efforts and with a new sense of responsibility press onward to the completion of our task."

"Following the incorporation of the Association your president busied herself organizing the Association's standing committee, which is inferentially provided for in Sec. 1, Article 6 of the by-laws. The duties of this committee were not specified. In similar organizations such committees are created for the purpose of lending prestige to the organization. In organizing your standing committee your president proceeded with that in view, and invited people of national standing to serve. The responses to her invitations have been uniformly and unanimously cordial and encouraging, showing that our project is one that appeals to thinking and patriotic citizens. The organization of this committee is being diligently prosecuted. As now constituted the members are:

Hon. Newton D. Baker, Cleveland, Ohio, Secretary of War, World War.

General John J. Pershing, Commander of Overseas Forces, World War.

Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, President General, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution.

Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury.

Hon. Josephus Daniels, Raleigh, N. C., Secretary of the Navy, World War.

General S. H. Wolfe, New York City, Insurance Actuary.

Hon. Otto Kahn, New York City, International Banker and Financier.

Mrs. Blaine S. Viles, State Regent, Maine Daughters of the American Revolution.

Hon. Ralph O. Brewster, Augusta, Governor, State of Maine.

Gen. H. M. Lord, Washington, D. C., Director of the Bureau of the Budget.

Henry E. Dunnaack, Augusta, Maine, State Librarian.

F. W. Wright, esq., Washington, D. C., Bureau of the Budget.

Hon. John G. Winant, Concord, Governor, State of New Hampshire.

Hon. Franklin S. Billings, Montpelier, Governor, State of Vermont.

Hon. Aram J. Pothier, Providence, Governor, State of Rhode Island.

Hon. John H. Trumbull, Hartford, Governor, State of Connecticut.

Hon. E. Lee Trinkle, Richmond, Governor, State of Virginia.

All of the letters received by Mrs. Lord from those who accepted places on the standing committee were cordial and evidenced interest in the Association's plans. She read several typical ones, from which the following extracts are made:

Gen. John J. Pershing: It is a very fine thing to preserve the facts of history by appropriate memorials and the preservation of relics. I heartily approve of your undertaking with reference to Gen. Knox, whose services were so distinguished. Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, president-general of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution: In my opinion, there is no more significant service to the nation than that which our Society is rendering in the marking and preserving of historic spots. It is one in which all of us should participate, since by so doing, we link up with the living present that which is finest and most ennobling in the past. The movement inaugurated by the Knox Memorial Association to erect a suitable memorial to that great American patriot, Gen. Henry Knox of Thomaston, Maine, is one that should not only receive the endorsement of the citizens of New England, whose distinguished son he was, but of every other section of the country. Honored friend of the great Washington, General of Artillery in the Continental Army, Secretary of War and a founder of the order of the Cincinnati his services for his beloved country were rendered not to any one section or locality, but to the nation at large, and it is my earnest hope that contributions to this worthy cause may be forthcoming from all parts of the Union.

Gov. Ralph O. Brewster: Close at my left hand in the Executive Chamber is an oil portrait of Gen. Knox so that I am daily reminded of his association with the history of our State. I presume you are familiar with this portrait, but I shall be pleased to have you call and examine it whenever opportunity affords.

Gov. Blaine S. Viles, State Regent Maine D. A. R.: I am very happy to endorse the purpose of this organization and hope to see the completion of the wonderful memorial.

Hon. Josephus Daniels of Raleigh, N. C., former Secretary of the Navy: I am greatly interested in honoring the great men of the country, like Gen. Knox and am happy to know that you and other Daughters are leading in this movement. I shall be very glad to do anything in my power.

Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury: I am glad to know that the Knox Memorial Association is planning to erect in Thomaston, a suitable building to be used as a museum for housing all obtainable relics of Gen. Knox. Gen. Knox was an outstanding figure of the Revolutionary War; and as a personal friend of Washington and a Member of his Cabinet, he exercised a great influence in helping to make the early history of this country. It is fitting that his memory should be commemorated and I know of no more suitable and desirable way in which this can be done than by preserving for posterity the historic relics which were so closely associated with him and with his time. I hope you will have unequalled success in your patriotic undertaking.

The reading of the letters was listened to with a great deal of interest but there were very few in the audience who were prepared for the pleasant surprise which came next. Mrs. Lord said:

Secretary Mellon, as an earnest of his interest in our campaign, forwarded a check for $1000. This was an unsolicited contribution as no canvass has yet been made for donations. Gen. Dawes and Gen. Wolfe each forwarded checks for $25, also unsolicited, and become subscribing members of the Association. These contributions have been deposited with the Security Trust Company of Rockland, pending the election of a bank treasurer. All these letters will be deposited with the recording secretary for preservation."

Before proceeding with the regular routine of the meeting Mrs. Lord called upon Judge Frank B. Miller to act as parliamentary and legal adviser.

Mrs. Katherine Derry, secretary of the Association read the minutes of the last annual meeting. Mrs. Richard Dunn, local treasurer, reported receipts to the amount of $350 and a cash balance of $282.50 to which Mrs. Mary Cooper had added $35 since the meeting opened. Mrs. Blanche Ayers, curator, read an impressive list of relics which had been received during the year.

Gen. Herbert M. Lord, who had been following the progress of the meeting with keen interest, asked for definite information concerning the Knox relics, which brought from Mrs. Lois Creighton the statement that furniture and other relics which came from the Knox Mansion will be turned over to the Association as soon as a fireproof building can be erected to receive them. Mrs. Creighton stated that the movement was started in 1914 by Gen.

Knox Chapter of Thomaston and that the funds which have been raised are now held in trust by the Knox Memorial committee of the Chapter. "We ought to begin now asking that funds and relics be given to the Knox Memorial Association, Inc.," said Mrs. Lucy W. Hazlett of Bangor.

"I am sure that will all be smoothed out," reassured Gen. Lord. "The matter can be safely trusted in the hands of Gen. Knox Chapter."

Miss Hortense Wilson, registrar, reported that the Association has 181 members, and that four life members have been added. Mrs. Mary Cooper made a concise and interesting report as chairman of the membership committee, with valuable suggestions incorporated. Mrs. Lois Creighton, publicity and press chairman, said that there had been "an invariable and ready response" from the newspapers.

"Montpelier," the home of Gen. Henry Knox

Gen. Lord's resolution that the members of the standing committee be men and women of prestige, available for counsel was adopted.

These officers were elected:
President—Mrs. Annie W. Lord, Washington, D. C.

First Vice President—Mrs. Lois Creighton, Thomaston.

Second Vice President—Frank H. Ingraham, Rockland.

Third Vice President—Mrs. Mary Cooper, Rockland.

Fourth Vice President—Mrs. Lucy W. Hazlett, Bangor.

Bank Treasurer—Thomaston National Bank.

Local Treasurer—Mrs. Ella W. Dunn, Thomaston.

Recording Secretary—Frank B. Miller, Rockland. (Miss Harriet Williams was unable to continue in that capacity. It was reported.)

Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Katherine C. Derry, Rockland.

Registrar—Miss Hortense Wilson, Thomaston.

Librarian—Mrs. Louise C. Hewett, Thomaston.

Curator—Mrs. Blanche W. Ayers, Thomaston.

Custodian—Mrs. Nan B. Higgs, Rockland.

Chaplain—Mrs. Effie J. Seavey, Thomaston.

Auditor—Miss Rita C. Smith, Thomaston.

Trustees—Edward K. Gould, Rockland, W. G. Washburn, Thomaston, J. W. Hupper, St. George, Mrs. Josephine F. Walker, Thomaston, J. C. Perry, Rockland, Judge W. H. Fisher, Augusta, and Lawrence H. Dunn, Thomaston.

Upon motion of Mrs. Creighton a rising vote of thanks was given to Judge E. K. Gould of Rockland for his generous services in forming the corporation.

Mrs. Creighton asked the pertinent question as to how much money has already been raised toward the memorial, and the meeting was informed by the local treasurer that there was $3007.11 on hand.

There was some discussion as to the duties of the trustees, and upon motion of Gen. Lord it was voted that the matter be left in abeyance, with the understanding that it be considered on the basis of what are usually trustee's duties, as defined in parliamentary rules.

Miss M. J. Watts told of a visit to Kennebunk where she called upon an aged citizen who had contributed $500 to the memorial. The donation was unsolicited, he said, and was given from patriotic motives, after he had visited the site of "Montpelier." Mrs. Watts wondered that the gift had never been publicly acknowledged, but this was quickly explained by the treasurer, Mrs. Dunn, who said that the donor had not wanted anybody outside of the Chapter to know about it.

The promise made by a well known Thomaston resident, now deceased, to give $1000 to the cause, was discussed. The matter is to be taken up with the estate.

As the meeting was upon the point of adjournment Judge Miller directed the attention of the gathering to the fact that the great grandfather of Vice President Dawes was a resident of Thomaston about 1790.

The Afternoon Reception

Evidencing a warm desire on the part of the General Knox Chapter, D. A. R., of Thomaston to assist in furthering the interests of the Knox Memorial Association, Inc., a reception was given in honor of Mrs. Herbert M. Lord, president of the Association, by the Chapter, at the home of Miss M. J. Watts, Saturday afternoon from three to five o'clock. In the receiving line were Mrs. Lord, Mrs. Blaine S. Viles, State Regent of the Maine D. A. R., Mrs. Bruce Higgs, Regent of Gen. Knox Chapter, D. A. R., William Barri, of Kennebunkport, Mrs. Charles A. Creighton and Mrs. F. Cooper, Rockland. Immediately following the reception a short musical program was given by Miss Kathryn Hooper, pianist, of Camden; Miss Mabelle Brown, soprano; Miss Bertha Luce, violinist and Stanley Cushing, tenor.

Socially, the reception was a delightful affair and Miss Watts' spacious rooms were thronged with towns people and guests who were delighted at the opportunity given them of meeting Mrs. Lord and her distinguished husband, Gen. Lord. About

COMMUNITY CHEST

Final Figures Show That the Drive Went Well Over the Top.

The directors of the Rockland Community Chest at their meeting last evening enjoyed with enthusiasm the report of Treasurer Emery, announcing the total subscription of the recent budget-raising campaign, as $17,851.42 which exceeds by $351.42 the amount set to be raised. And there yet are to be heard from several friends of the Chest, whose contributions will still further increase this surplus.

If there remain any doubters of Rockland's willingness to give to a good thing they must be strangely endowed individuals.

The total number of contributors to the Chest this year is approximately 1450, or about the same as last year.

Among the matters discussed by the directors was the Boy Scout movement, which the Community Chest now makes possible to introduce into Rockland upon an enlarged scale. George B. Wood made a report upon his visit last week to the New England Headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America, in Boston, and stated that William B. Severance, representing the headquarters, will visit Rockland this week for the purpose of laying before our citizens details of the Boy Scout work, with view to effecting the local organization necessary to put the work into operation here under direction of a trained Scout Leader.

A surprising number of motorists either can't read or don't believe in signs according to residents of the Old County Road. A large barn, formerly the property of J. C. The barn takes up the whole road and makes automobile traffic next to impossible, yet motorists by the dozen note their way to the turning around place and then note back again.

"The Ten Commandments," which had its first showing at Park Theatre last night, justified the splendid notices which it has everywhere received. The prologue tells the story of Egypt in the days of the Pharaoh's glory, and how the children of Israel were delivered from bondage. The scene in which the war chariots of the pursuers are engulfed by the sea is one of the most striking pictures ever shown on the screen. The prologue is followed by a modern story of great dramatic interest, and an obvious moral.

The Ku Klux Klan held a big convocation in Portland, Saturday, with a good sized delegation from Rockland and vicinity in attendance. Imperial Wizard H. G. Evans of Atlanta paid his first visit to the State in that capacity and twice addressed large audiences, including many women. De Forest H. Perkins of Portland was elected and installed as granddragon.

A portion of the Old County road was closed to travel Sunday and yesterday to accommodate the removal of a large barn from the George Smith place to S. H. Doe's premises. The barn occupied so much of the street's width that it was necessary to transfer trolley passengers, and even to remove some of the cross which has been done, or is in prospect, in the towns of Thomaston, Appleton, Camden and Hope. The bonds will run 29 years, at 4 per cent interest, will be in denominations of $500, and will be redeemable at the rate of $3500 a year. The next important bridge project will be the Wadsworth street bridge in Thomaston, which, it is estimated, will cost in the neighborhood of $118,000. The county's share will be 30 per cent.

A peddler, who enlists sympathy by pretending to be deaf, is selling needles in this part of the State. A day or so ago a Randolph housewife went to the door and the man went through his usual procedure, and unthinkingly the lady of the house answered, "Yes, but I've got three or four packages of needles already." Whereupon the deaf man responded by writing on his pad "Let me see your three or four packages" which remark proved that his hearing was as good as the average.

The county commissioners have authorized a bond issue in the sum of $70,000 to take care of bridge work which has been done, or is in prospect, in the towns of Thomaston, Appleton, Camden and Hope. The bonds will run 29 years, at 4 per cent interest, will be in denominations of $500, and will be redeemable at the rate of $3500 a year. The next important bridge project will be the Wadsworth street bridge in Thomaston, which, it is estimated, will cost in the neighborhood of $118,000. The county's share will be 30 per cent.

Philip Ricker Shorey, official director of publicity for the state of Maine, and "Larry" Ellis of the Fox News Reel, New York, were visitors at the Courier-Gazette office Saturday. They have been down East with the Maine publicity excursion, but found so much to claim their attention that they remained behind and got in some good licks with their movie camera and fountain pen. During their brief stay in Rockland pictures were made of the lime industry, and these will eventually be released throughout the country. Mr. Shorey, who is a former New York newspaper man, is sending out some excellent articles not only for consumption by Maine newspapers, but which are well played in such outside publications as Motor Life and Automobile. Mr. Shorey handled the publicity end of MacMillan's departure for the Arctic, and certainly did a good stunt.

Rockland baseball fans are in for a busy week. Wednesday the Westbrook team plays here at 5:30, and it will be quite a different proposition from the Westbrook team which recently played in Camden. Phoenix, late of the Lawrence team and Boston Twilight League, will play second base. McLellan who played such a whale of a game at third base when Westbrook was here last season, will play short this year, and Aube, a brother of the Rockland pitcher, will cover third. The Westbrook pitcher was with the Des Moines team in the Western League until recently. In fact Westbrook will have practically a new team modeled to meet the crack Rockland outfit. Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock sharp, the Rockland Old Timers and Vinalhaven Old Timers will meet at Community Park for their annual engagement. The game is called this early in order that the two teams may see the Rockland-Camden game in Camden at 5:30. The Old Timers' game is a unique institution, probably without a parallel in the State, quite a number of the players being about 50 years of age. No admission will be charged, but the spectators are requested to take along a little silver for the "hat" and some wholly respectful remarks for the venerable players. This game will be "something different" and will be well worth seeing. The 5:30 game between Rockland and Camden, in Camden, is especially covered by Manager Wotton's team as it will bring the series to a tie. Friday afternoon at 5:30 the East Boston team comes here by special request for a return engagement. Rockland defeated this team 5 to 4 last week, but East Boston played a much classier game in Camden, and has lots of new tricks to show.

McCOBB MANSION ARRIVES

World's Greatest Houseboat Tarries Awhile in Rockland Harbor—Hats Off to Cap'n Snow

Word was received from White Head Coast Guard Station at 1:30 Sunday afternoon that the famous McCobb mansion was passing behind the Snow Marine Co. tugs, and the news spread with such rapidity that long before 3 o'clock, the expected hour of passing the water front was alive with spectators, this in spite of a gentle though continuous downpour. A great majority had expected to see the queer-looking tug that crept into sight around Owls Head to continue up river to Rockport, consequently there was considerable of a flurry when the tug boats straightened their course into Rockland harbor. Naturally there was a rush for Maine Central and Snow wharves and no group of fire fiends were ever in a greater hurry.

The picture made as the fleet drew nearer was inspiring. Tugs Walter Ross and Sommers N. Smith were doing the towing and the lighter Sophia acted as chaperon. The huge old house, square in true colonial habit, dwarfed the tugs, looming as it did on its great raft, a former N. Y. N. H. & R. railroad ferry. It looked as natural as life with towering chimneys and cupola, white painted walls and green blinds. The arrival at the Snow Marine Co. dock was witnessed by several hundred persons, all marveling at the ease with which "Cap'n John" directed handling of the exceedingly cumbersome craft which slid into position beside the steamer Southport without as much as a quiver. Somehow the smoothness of the trick made everybody want to cheer.

The story of the moving of this famous house has already been told at length in these columns, but a brief retelling might not be amiss. It was built at Phippsburg on the shore of beautiful Minot's Cove and gained fame as a spite house, being erected for the express purpose of dwarfing in size and beauty the old McCobb homestead nearby. The house is called one of the finest examples of pure colonial architecture in New England, and this led to its purchase by Donald D. Dodge of Philadelphia who will have it incorporated with his new summer home at Beauclaire Point in Rockport on the Henry estate. In addition to the McCobb mansion, Mr. Dodge has acquired another famous old farmhouse, on Harpswell Neck, the Stover place, which will be carefully taken apart for the materials and rebuilt in the new home.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. F. C. Billard, arrived this morning from Washington, and registered at the Thorndike Hotel.

Rockland Old Timers vs. Vinalhaven Old Timers at Community Park Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, daylight time. The lineup of the Vinalhaven team has already been published, the feature being a battery, the average age of which is 57½ years. The Rockland team will be drafted from 15 aspirants 14 of whom want to pitch.

It takes more than a shower or two to dampen the spirits of the Rockland Band on pleasure bent, and the effects were felt from the Sunday downpour by the musicians who were experiencing the fine hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. William Benner at Green's Island. The trip was made with Capt. Stewart Ames in the Carlisle D. Morrell.

Postmaster G. H. Blethen has been authorized to proceed with the installation of new walks surrounding the Federal building and the making of other exterior repairs. It is probable that when the walks are laid around the huge Sears store on the school street side that a fairly wide space will be left free in order to assure the health of the tree. It seems almost a pity that a tablet of some sort is not placed on the tree by the Sears Roebuck Co. or the Veterans Firemen, for the old tree is the sole survivor of those which he left the Boston's famous wreckers. The fire of 1853 causing the death of hosieryman James F. Sears.

Considerable comment has been made on the fact that on either side of the Snow wharf yesterday were very real monuments to the genius of that notable Rockland son, Capt. John I. Snow. On the north is tied up the spectacular steamer, Sankaty, raised from the depths at Fair Haven, Mass., by Capt. Snow in spite of the efforts of Boston's famous wreckers. The fine steamer was burned in a dock fire and sunk by fire engine streams. On the south side floated the famous McCobb mansion representing a feat of marine engineering which has attracted nationwide attention. Not far up the dock floated a huge barge, salvaged by Capt. Snow from a watery grave not far from that of the Sankaty, and this too in spite of the Massachusetts experts.

WORLD'S GREATEST BIBLE

Compiled By Edward T. Garland and Has 31,739 Handwritten Verses.

What is said to be the world's greatest Bible is approximately one-tenth completed. Edward T. Garland, secretary of the Bible Society of Maine, its maker, expects that several years more will be consumed before the book makes its formal appearance.

When completed the book will lay claim to its greatness by reason of the fact that the 31,739 verses will have been hand-written by 31,739 persons. These various authors will include the president of the United States and lives in states prisons. Already President Coolidge has penned the first verse in the Bible. The second verse is in the handwriting of Governor Ralph O. Brewster and the third verse is that of former Governor Percival P. Baxter. Mr. Garland estimates that approximately 3,000 persons have written in the book. When finished it will be of the ordinary "family Bible" size and will weigh no more than such a book.

The mechanics of the moving of the McCobb house presents items of interest. It stood about 200 yards back from the shore of Minot's Cove with a deep gully between. The house was raised and set on a cradle of heavy timbers, the chimneys, which are very tall, being carefully strapped into place with planks. Then a trestle was constructed and the house moved over it by means of the usual horse power turn table, later lowered to the level of the big float and slid into place. All this was done without straining a timber or cracking a bit of plaster. Sunday saw what old salts term "a good chance" and Capt. John I. Snow with his fleet undertook the hazardous feat of moving the unwieldy tow to Rockland, a distance of about 65 miles. The start was made on the high tide at 4 o'clock Sunday morning and conditions of such a favorable nature encountered that the expiration of 12 hours saw the docking operation at Rockland in progress. The stop at this port was necessitated for reasons of safety while final arrangements were completed in Rockport. The big Bangor tug Walter Ross and our own Sommers N. Smith snaked the tow along at 6 knots per hour, the Sophia being given a joy ride. Her function was that of guardian angel, that is, she would have supplied steam to the big 8-inch pump mounted on the float in case any leak appeared, which fortunately did not occur. The Sophia also functioned in the capacity of rudder, helping swing the float when necessary. Arrangements had been made to stop at any one of several harbors along the route in case a breeze developed.

The railroad float is the property of the Snow Marine Co., bought because the railroad refused to allow its use through fire. It is expected that the final move will be made today, weather and tide serving right. The house will be set on its new foundation by A. R. Tingley, the Portland contractor who landed it on the float.

The Snow Marine Co., was unable to say this morning just when the nautical caravan would complete its journey. When this paper went to press Capt. John I. Snow was at Beauclaire Point, inspecting the landing place. It was thought the house will be taken thither this afternoon. Many hundreds of sight-seers went to Snow's wharf yesterday to view the unique sight.

EDGECOMB CUT-OFF

To Be Ready By Labor Day; Work Being Rushed

It is expected that the Edgcomb cut-off, an important link in the Atlantic Highway, cutting off some of the most dangerous curves and rockiest hills in that section will be ready to open on Labor Day.

The fill on the east side of the cut was completed last week and rocks are being placed to rip-rap the sides to hold them in place. This fill is reached from the highway at the east end of Wiscasset bridge over a long gravelled road. The fill, 1500 feet long, which a year ago appeared a bottomless pit and was costing the State thousands of dollars extra on the contract, required more than 100,000 cubic yards of dirt.

Beyond this fill is a bridge built upon piling, 200 feet long, all railed and ready for travel. The workmen are now filling in between the end of the bridge and Davis Island where there is 200 feet of open water and the bottom thus far has proved an excellent foundation.

ODD FELLOWS HOME

Committee Still Looking For Desirable Site—Not To Be A Sanatorium.

The committee on the Odd Fellows Home is looking around. A lot was purchased in Auburn some years ago, but the committee is not yet settled as to plans. They have looked over places in Gray, Skowhegan and other places as well as the Sankaty farm on the road to Poland and Spring near Lewiston Junction. The farm idea is rather losing ground however with the committee, which do not want a farm but a home, within reach of good medical attendance, churches, movies, and other things that may interest the residents of the home.

One of the local Odd Fellows says, "What the committee should remember is that this is not to be a sanatorium. It is not for tuberculosis; but a home for happiness and for comfort. A farm is a drag on such a project."

"There will be need of constant medical attendance. Take the Sankaty house for instance—a beautiful house all right, but what of the winters out there. I believe that a home in the city, with good grounds and pleasant surroundings is the proper thing."

It is said that a general meeting of some of the most prominent Odd Fellows in Maine will be called soon to determine just what may be the procedure.—Lewiston Journal

The Ladies' Aid of Littlefield Memorial church lawn party and sale was held July 23. The beautiful lawns of Thomas Hawken, proved an ideal background for the gaily decorated booths, and a perfect day helped to make the affair a success as about $160 was realized. Much credit is due Mrs. Maggie Farnham, general chairman of the sale, who was ably assisted by the following committees: Bibles and cards, Mrs. O. W. Stuart, Mrs. Aaron Maxey, candy, Ruth Conant, Sybil Jones; cooked food, Mrs. Frank Gregory, Mrs. Eva Chaples; ice cream, Mrs. Hattie Kenney, Mrs. Mattie Barter, Arlene Chaples, Annie Dean. The Ladies' Aid thanks Mr. Hawken for the use of the grounds, Mrs. O. W. Stuart, who personally made all of the ice cream, those furnishing the musical entertainment, and everyone who in any way contributed to the affair.

Sheriff Raymond D. Thurston was speaker and honor guest of the Forty Club yesterday noon and was given a rousing example of how the youngsters do things. The song session under leadership of E. R. Veazie was especially good. Sheriff Thurston told of some of the problems and perplexities of law enforcement and told some of the encouraging features of Knox County. Particularly interesting was his version of the capture of the famous run barge now in the harbor. He made diagrams of the craft and its ingenious hides, paid full credit to Capt. Magee who made the find and answered innumerable questions.

Latest Triumph in Railroading

THE completion of the new Chicago Union Station marks a noteworthy accomplishment in the history of important engineering undertakings, from which travelers from all parts of the United States will derive pleasure and benefit.

The station is without doubt one of the finest and most efficiently designed railroad terminals in the world. It forms a vital link in the realization of the "Chicago City Beautiful Plan." Simplicity, accessibility and convenience for the traveling public are the essential virtues of the new terminal. Rest and recreation rooms, ticket offices, barber shop, dining rooms, stores of various kinds, and almost every convenience known to travelers, are to be found on the one level, no steps to climb.

The main station is a low monumental type of building with a row of massive columns of classic design along the entire east front. Once inside, the traveler finds himself in a gigantic waiting room more than 100 feet high and brilliantly lighted through skylights in the great arch ceiling. Colonnades inclose the room, the walls of which are patterned after the architecture of ancient Rome. Bordering this room are the ultra-complete passenger terminal facilities. An innovation in railway terminal design is a conference room accommodating 125 people, which is available, without charge, to patrons of the Union Station lines for conferences and other meetings.

To give some idea of the immensity of the new station, it may be stated that the main building covers an area of about three acres with a concourse covering 60,000 square feet. The entire terminal facilities cover more than 35 acres and will expedite the prompt and satisfactory handling of 50,000 passengers, 400 tons of baggage and 300 trains daily with room for future expansion. Fifteen acres of glass were used in the various coverings over the train sheds, which extend more than 1,200 feet beyond the main structure. A total of 17,000 tons of structural steel, 175,000 cubic feet of Indiana limestone and 10,000 cubic feet of granite were used in the station building and concourse. The foundation consists of 449 cylindrical concrete piers from four to ten feet in diameter, reaching to a depth of more than 60 feet below the level of the Chicago river.

Those who have had the privilege of inspecting the new station pronounce it a marvel in terminal construction and are urging their friends to see it on their next visit to Chicago.

The station is used jointly by the Pennsylvania Railroad; Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry.; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R. R. and the Chicago & Alton R. R.

My EUROPEAN EXCURSIONS

By Edwin Robert Petre

THE GROTTOS OF HAN

No tourist takes a holiday in Belgium without paying a visit to the famous Grotto of Han, one of the most beautiful spectacles in Europe, which is visited every year by hundreds and thousands of sightseers.

The nearest rail point is Rochefort. After making the ascent from the village of Han-sur-Lesse by tram to the Fauve Rocks, whence is obtained a magnificent view of the Ardennes, the traveler enters the Grotto, and for two hours can contemplate fresh wonders at every step, wonders which have been fashioned at the caprices of centuries of time. The magnitude and the ornamentation of the halls, and the gigantic stalagmites, are beyond all description. The exit from the grotto, in a canoe, which forms the culminating point of the famous excursion and the sudden reappearance of daylight, framed in verdure, which so strikingly contrasts across the absolute obscurity whence one emerges, leaves upon the mind an indelible impression of coming to the last page of Arabian Nights.

Watch for the "Jack Rabbit" on the road. They are increasing.

Both Willing to Be Married

By VERICK SHALLMAR

"What on earth are you putting these in for?" exclaimed Rose Turner as Lila carefully arranged certain garments upon the rack of her wardrobe trunk. The garments were those of a widow, a very Parisian, smart little widow to be sure, but Lila, to her friend's knowledge, had never been married.

"Got an idea. Ever have one?" laughed Lila. "I didn't have any vacation last year so I've got a whole month this year. And if all goes well I'm never coming back to this moth-balled old town where I've lived all my life. I'm going to get a transfer."

"Oh, a job in California?" smiled Rose.

"No, unless you call a husband a job," confessed Lila. "Look here, Rose, we just go around and round in the same circle. If we do meet anybody worth while from outside, we don't get a second look. Oh, we're young enough and pretty enough."

"Keep the tip! Who does get the to-be-married looks? The young widow, of course. Unknown, mysterious, camouflaged widow! Look at that little Mrs. Andrews, and Mrs. Harlowe, with the baby face and the full-grown past."

Rose caught the idea. "Yes, and that flashy little lavender widow from New Orleans last winter. Remember?"

"Certainly. I didn't play the part of that clinging-vine young widow fellow in 'Wedding Belles' for the Shriners last month for nothing."

Rose recalled her roommate's dainty figure enhanced by misty floating veils and crisp black frills. "You were the hit of the whole show," she acknowledged.

"I always could wear black," Lila said, glancing in the mirror at the delicate ink line of her brows. "Rose, every man's a sob artist at heart." Lila went on. "A helpless little widow, heart-broken, lonesome, reaching out for something—"

"Someone," corrected Rose.

"Gets their immediate attention," continued Lila. "She's a contrast from all this athletic, trouser-wearing, hey-give-me-a-light suit that most young girls pull nowadays."

"All millionaires in favor of young widows say 'aye,'" Rose sang out. "Ah, the eyes have it!"

"Nobody knows me at the San Clemente," said Lila, "and widows don't need expensive chaperons. I've saved money to last a month. Rose, I'm as desperate as Jesse James. I won't fail!"

"Lila," Rose said, "I hear millions raving you!"

So did Lila herself when she sped away on the Sunny California Limited the next day—millions of doubts!

Mrs. Ambrey-Meredith, the apparently wealthy society matron with the bourgeois habit of introducing clever people to smart people, in reality a paid chaperon hired by the shrewd San Clemente management, made a mental note as the stylish and lovely Mrs. Lila Pettit registered, taking a modest but pleasantly situated single-room suite.

Lila was lovely, she was mysterious and she had a shy smile. Half of her vacation fled by on gilded wings and Lila more than realized her ambition to meet new and eligible men. She gathered proposals as other women gathered sea shells, and she considered her plan had failed.

And then gay handsome headstrong Dick Brenden appeared and Lila realized how little money can count for. Not that Dick didn't have any. He had enough, but Lila knew that money was loved him had been a bellhop.

Two more weeks. Then a certain night upon the beach, a golden moon gliding the sands, distant music, whispering waters and the magical music of pounding pulses and leaping hearts, the magic that depends upon neither moonlight nor music nor the glamour of gold, the magic of youth and love.

"I—I can't marry you, Dick," Lila heard herself saying very low. "I—I've deceived you. I'm not what I pretended to be, a widow." Richard grew visibly pale and gulped.

"You—you mean you're—you're married?" he asked.

"No, no," cried Lila. "I'm only—"

"I don't care who you are or what you are. I love you," Dick said.

"I'm only a typist," Lila rushed to explain. "I've never been married in my life. My name's only Lila Pitt. Every man seemed so crazy about widows that I thought—You are, Dick!"

"I'd be crazy about you, Lila, if you were a widow or a pretender!" "I got the idea from a part, Mrs. Pettit. I played in—"

"Wedding Belles!" I know, Lila, I wrote the blamed thing. To find out if widows were the peach of every man's eye. Then I saw you, there might be a chance for widows."

"Oh, Dick!"

"Sorry, dear, but I pretended, too. I've two wonderful kiddies with my sister. Guess that let's me out!"

"Dick Brenden, if you don't marry me soon the hotel'll let me out. My money's melted away!"

"And the kiddies, dear?"

"Dick, I'd love you if you had a dozen. I'm so happy I could be a clown. Don't, Lila! Never be a widow again, please!"

Brilliant Plaid Sport Coats and Gay Evening Wraps the Mode

An imported coat of red and white plaid, with a border and cuffs of red, worn by Mae Busch, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player.

Color, gay and riotous, predominates in the newer coats for mid-summer and early fall wear, according to the colored wraps and coats shown in the New York shops. Flannel in solid colors vies with the always popular plain white double-breasted tailored coats for sport wear, with novelty coats of high colored, imported plaid shown among the newer and higher priced models.

Above are three distinctive wraps which depict the individualism found among the more fashionable creations.

Salmon colored satin, with ostrich feather trimming dyed to match the material, forms this chic wrap worn by Marion Davies.

At the right is another sport coat of individual chic. Claire Windsor, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer player, illustrates how very dressy a black and white plaid flannel sport coat can be when it has a white border of white fox fur at the bottom. The lapels and collar of this coat are of white flannel.

For cool nights at the seashore, as well as for the chilly autumnal nights in the city, the stunning salmon colored satin wrap in the center, worn by Marion Davies, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star is not only colorful but ultra chic. Salmon colored ostrich feathers, dyed to match the material, forms the collar and border of this wrap.

Up to the present, says Professor Mellet, no serious study of the indigenous languages of America and of other regions has ever been made, but the ground now is being broken by French students and a comparison of the vocabularies of a group of California languages and certain Polynesian languages has brought to light "satisfying and numerous coincidences."

The vocabulary of the indigenous races of Patagonia, the lecturer told his colleagues of the College de France, "shows striking resemblances to that of Australian races. And it is interesting to note that these linguistic resemblances parallel almost identically similar resemblances in the arms, domestic utensils and the religious used in the same epoch in America and other regions. But these similarities do not date from the time when these continents were connected by land instead of vast oceans. Therefore it is to be concluded that navigators sailed over these immense spaces."

Medicine vs. Milk

So important is the question of milk to the health of the nation that the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., in their effort to prolong the lives of their members, have spent thousands of dollars the past year publishing the following advertisement in national magazines:

"More than $219,000,000 a year for patent medicines in the United States! This is the astounding figure quoted by the latest government census of manufacturers.

Seldom Feel Need.

"If we maintain the right mental attitude, if we eat, sleep and exercise properly, the chances are we will seldom feel the need of medicines. There are times, now and then, when we all feel a little below par. If, instead of rushing off for a bottle of Dr. Bunkum's Tonic to brace us up, we would go to nature herself for the greatest of all food tonics—milk—we would be a different lot of men and women.

"Milk is Nature's Patent—the only thing she ever made solely for food. It cannot be reproduced artificially. Only Nature herself can so perfectly blend all the elements of a well-balanced diet as she has in milk.

"Milk sounds like patent medicine when all its virtues are catalogued. It is the oldest prescription in the world—Nature's prescription for the building of strong, healthy bodies. Nature's revitalizer, Nature's nerve of rich, red blood, Nature's nerver, Nature's antidote for the 'fired feeling.'

"If milk were put up in bottles of different shape and size, if it were given a fanciful name and announced for what it really is 'as the greatest body building and health restorative in the world,' people would flock to buy it at fancy prices. But because it costs so little and is delivered every morning at our door steps, we seldom give its virtues a thought. We are apt to disregard the value of familiar things.

"Drink More Milk and Save Money." "Milk is an ideal food for all ages. Not merely a pleasant food for children. It looks simple, but it is the most complex food in the world—liquid meat, sugar and fat, with mineral salts and life-giving vitamins added.

"Nutrition experts declare milk to be the most perfect food we have.

returned last Tuesday from a delightful vacation spent at Bar Harbor. Mr. and Mrs. Beal and daughters Pauline and Eleanor are spending their vacation at Jonesport.

Prof. H. K. Job of West Haven, Conn., has paid his usual visit to the Rock and the Little Birds, taking many pictures of the same. He was blessed with fair weather during his stay here.

We get the idea that E. V. Beal of Beals isn't the kind that says out of sight out of mind, because he recently sent his friends here a box of the finest chestnuts ever seen. Did we eat them? Yes, we did—they're gone, shells and all. That's no joke—it's the way to Hooverize.

We're tired, too tired, no sun in sight; The engine and whistle going day and night; Mr. Weatherman isn't using us right; An old sea rolling in isn't much delight. Get me?

Frenchman Would Strip Laurel From Columbus
French savants are investigating the theory question of who discovered America. In a paper read before the College de France, a paper which the French press terms "sensational," Professor Mellet states that it was not Christopher Columbus. The famous voyager merely rediscovered a continent which was known long before his day to other navigators.

Up to the present, says Professor Mellet, no serious study of the indigenous languages of America and of other regions has ever been made, but the ground now is being broken by French students and a comparison of the vocabularies of a group of California languages and certain Polynesian languages has brought to light "satisfying and numerous coincidences."

The vocabulary of the indigenous races of Patagonia, the lecturer told his colleagues of the College de France, "shows striking resemblances to that of Australian races. And it is interesting to note that these linguistic resemblances parallel almost identically similar resemblances in the arms, domestic utensils and the religious used in the same epoch in America and other regions. But these similarities do not date from the time when these continents were connected by land instead of vast oceans. Therefore it is to be concluded that navigators sailed over these immense spaces."

That Spirits Walk Earth Is a Universal Belief
The belief that dead persons make their reappearance on the earth is, according to an author, universal among all the ancient races.

The Eskimos say the spirit exhibits the same form and shape as the body it belonged to, but of a more subtle and ethereal nature.

The Tonga Islanders believe that the human soul is the finer part of the body, the essence that can pass out, as does the fragrance from a flower.

The Greenlanders describe the spirit as pallid, soft and intangible. Doctor Churchward knows some people now living who possess the gift of seeing and communicating with their departed friends, who never leave them night or day. He says:

"But these good spirits cannot speak so that one can hear them; they cannot make noises, nor can you take photographs of them."

"Spirits are composed of pure corporeals in the likeness and form of their previous earthly state as humans, only much more beautiful. They cannot leave Paradise without divine permission."—Montreal Family Herald.

Panama Canal Idea Old
The first English book descriptive of America is said to be "The Decades of the new world," written in the Latin tongue by Peter Martyr of Angleria, and translated into English by Richard Eden, London, Anno 1555," the London Daily Mail says.

In the "Address to the Reader" Eden refers to Peter Martyr's account of the isthmus of Panama, and points out the desirability of constructing a good road from ocean to ocean. He admits that it would be a very expensive undertaking but a benefit to all mankind.

"But certainly the most treble and permanent glory proceedeth of such monuments as bring fame great and notable commoditie and profit to the life of men; rather than of the hugeous heapes of stones of the Pyramids of Egypt, wherein is sought els to feebe the fonde and barbarous ostentation of superstitious riches."

They do these things solely from a money-making standpoint, dealing with many lives.

You have only one life to gamble with. Can you do less for yourself with all at stake than they do with only a money interest as a reward. (Copyright, 1924, by Philip R. Park)

What to Expect of Electricity; Tips About Home Appliances

An Ironer Will Save More Time Than Any Other Electrical Appliance

By MILDRED NICHOLS

In Charge Electrical Housekeeping Department, Western Electric Co.

When you are contemplating buying any electrical appliance you are not interested in generalities—you want to know just how and why it will be an asset for you.

To get the very most out of your clothes washer with the least amount of effort, check these points: Never fill the washer by lugging pails of water; a length of common garden hose attached to the faucet will do the trick. Always make some arrangement for easy draining. Permanent attachment to the drain—length of hose running to a floor drain, an ejector, or even a small washer pump with an electric motor. The latter adds a bit to the cost of the washer, but it's well worth the price. And just remember to have the two control levers at an "off" position before turning on the current. This eliminates the chance of blowing a fuse, especially if you have to attach the cord to a light socket. A two-way plug is almost a necessity where there is only one socket. This enables you to have light and power at the same time.

The Electric Ironer is practically uncharted ground. Most of us know there is such a thing, but we dismiss it with a "Oh, yes, I know, a mangle for flat pieces and large families." No such thing. The ironer is a small ironer useful for a family of two as well as a Rooseveltian family. It's designed to iron everything a larger ironer can iron. And because of its small size, more reasonable in price and more adaptable to small homes.

An ironer will save more time than any other electrical appliance. The electrically-driven gas-heated ironer is within the means of the average family and the operating costs are negligible. You can iron practically everything on it. It's absurd to ignore an ironer simply because it won't do the most intricate pieces. Check up on your own wash and see what per cent is really in the intricate class. When you see a tablecloth that takes from twenty to twenty-five minutes to iron by hand come through an ironer perfectly ironed in five minutes, you'll be convinced that you're overlooking an exceptional labor-saver.

Not much need be said about the Electric Hand Iron. Practically every family has one. It's a recognized necessity. The convenience of steady, constant heat when and where you need it, the saving of steps, and the joy of being able to iron where it's cool have overbalanced the question of "How much current does it take?" It's a good idea to have two electric irons, one upstairs and one down. Ask the user of the iron in your home how she "disconnects" it. The proper way is to connect or disconnect at the iron rather than at the socket. Again, you minimize the chance of blowing a fuse. Another thing, if your iron becomes discolored from overheating, try cleaning it while the iron is hot, as hot as you can handle it.

Some one, for a joke, said "We need one of those silent policemen at the corner by the Post office." Now, it's no joke and both in winter and in summer the flashing warning of such an object would prevent many accidents. They don't cost too much so let's everyone in the village work like tigers for the suppers and have this "police" and good sidewalks as well as street lights. A dozen or so workers can't do this alone however.

LEWISTON MAN RECOVERS AFTER BEING RUNDOWN

Goulet's Bad Health Is Quickly Overcome By Sensational Medicine, Karnak, And He Gains Seven Pounds.

Karnak did this, Karnak did that. Everywhere you go throughout Maine you hear reports of restored health and strength that this sensational medicine is accomplishing. In every neighborhood is someone who has a remarkable story to tell of what this Master Health Builder has done for them.

One of these enthusiastic boosters of Karnak is Edward Goulet of 77 Birch St., Lewiston, Me., who relates here for the benefit of the readers of this paper the facts regarding his troubles and his return to health by means of this sensational medicine.

"No, sir, nothing I can say about this Karnak is good enough for it," declared Mr. Goulet. "I could look the world over and not be able to find anything to equal this medicine."

"And when a man has suffered as I have and finds something to fix him up like Karnak has me, why, I think he ought to tell everybody about it. I want to tell you my stomach was in such bad condition I didn't know what it was to eat a meal and not be miserable with indigestion afterward. I just lost my appetite completely and didn't care whether I ever saw any food or not. Then, too, my kidneys gave me all kinds of trouble, and I just got so weak and rundown I could hardly keep going."

"But I want to tell you six bottles of this Karnak has put me back on my feet feeling as fine as a fiddle. It has just rid me of every one of my troubles—stomach trouble, kidney trouble and all. You just ought to see me—eat now, and everything agrees with me to a 'T.' I have gained seven pounds in weight, and have so much new strength I am able to do the hardest kind of work without tiring out. Believe me, I recommend this Karnak to everybody."

Karnak is sold in Rockland exclusively by the Corner Drug Store; in Thomaston by McDonald's; in Union by Gorden-Lovejoy; in Camden by Chandler's Pharmacy; and by the leading Druggist in every town.

Parsi Put Their Dead

on Towers of Silence

It was a terrifying sight and I had to camouflage myself and to dress and act like a native of India in order to visit the sacred burial places of the Parsi, says a writer in "Deutsche Medizinische Wochenschrift."

The burial places, or rather the stoning places of the dead are the Towers of Silence. Foreigners can never get there, dead or alive. All photographs are prohibited. Only by special influence was it possible for me to get near these strange towers. A Parsi to whom I had been recommended by a friend agreed to guide me.

On Malabar hill there is a grove, surrounded by a high wall. A road takes one up to the house of the guards. We happened to see the burial of a rich Parsi. The body was dressed in white linen and lay on a network of strong thin straps held up by 12 carriers. The entire mourning crowd, dressed in white instead of black, followed the corpse two and two. Each couple was tied together by a white linen ribbon. Eagles and hawks circled about in the air.

I was unable to get to the Towers of Silence proper, but my companion described the burial procedure. The corpse is laid on the platform of one of the towers by men who are employed for their whole lifetime in this work. As the body begins to decay the eagles come down. The skeleton remains for about three months, and then is buried in a valley.

Widespread Belief in Horseshoe as Talisman

The horseshoe is one of the very oldest talismans for woe and good fortune that exists. The belief in its efficacy is held almost all over the world, and has been present since the dawn of history. You find it in Egypt and nailed to the threshold of the felt and wicker wigwams of the nomads of Turkestan.

In medieval England, especially in the southwest, horseshoes were often nailed on church doors to keep out evil spirits and witches. There used to be two huge ones on the south door of the parish church of Ashby-Foville, in Leicestershire, says the Family Herald.

There are records of a number of horseshoes having been nailed up for centuries on the gates of Oakham castle, in Rutland, which was built by Wakelin de Ferrars, son of the first earl. Every nomadic visiting it was made to forfeit a shoe of the horse on which he rode or pay a forfeit of money.

Probably the oldest continuous display of a horseshoe for luck to be found in Britain is the case of a shoe nailed up at Horseshoe corner, in the city of Lancaster. The first one was cast by the horse of John de Gaunt, when he was riding through the streets nearly six hundred years ago.

The more nails in a "found" horseshoe the greater the luck.

Wilde Well Aware of Failing of Humanity

Among other amusing stories in his "Memoirs and Adventures," Sir Arthur Conan Doyle relates this characteristic story told him by Oscar Wilde.

"We were discussing the cynical maxim that the good fortune of our friends made us discontented. 'The devil,' said Wilde, 'was once crossing the Libyan desert, and he came upon a spot where a number of lions were tormenting a poor hermit. The sainted man easily shook off their evil suggestions. The devil watched their failure and then he stepped forward to give them a lesson. "What you do is too crude," said he. "Permit me for one moment." With that he whispered to the holy man, "Your brother has just been made bishop of Alexandria." A scowl of malignant jealousy at once clouded the serene face of the hermit. "That," said the devil to his lips, "is the sort of thing which I should recommend."

Must Not Be Separated

Faraday, the great chemist, learned a lesson in boyhood by a very childish experience. As a little lad, humbly earning his bread by selling newspapers in the streets, he was waiting outside the office of an Edinburgh paper for the morning issue, and thrust his head and arms through the railings of the iron gate. He was a born metaphysician and began to speculate on which side of the railings he was, but he was not long in finding out. "My head and arms are on one side," he said to himself, "and my heart and body are on the other."

The gate was opened hastily before he could disengage himself, and the wrench he received taught him, as he said in after life, that all true work required head and heart and hands to be on the same side.

Do Good Work in World

Those to whom a commonplace appears to be extraordinary are rare, but they are not new. They are the creators of the world, the wide-eyed individuals who point out to the mass of mankind what has been accepted as a matter of routine.

They are the poets, religious leaders, story tellers, philosophers, theologians, artists, scientists, inventors. Commonly unnoticed things excite a strange and compelling curiosity in them, and each new question sets them on a fresh quest. They see where others are blind, hear where others are deaf. They form the noble band of wonderers.

—James Harvey Robinson.

Franking Privilege

The privilege of sending and receiving mail free of postage was once enjoyed by the president of the United States, vice president, heads of departments, senators and representatives, and other officials of the government during their official terms. For a time all former presidents and widows of former presidents also had this right, but by act of 1873 the privilege was abolished. By later act it was conferred on all officers of the government in the case of official correspondence. In 1895 members of congress were allowed this privilege in their official correspondence.

Fortified

One Sunday morning a southern pastor noticed a new attendant at the services.

"When the meeting was over the preacher made it his business to speak to the newcomer."

"Rastus," he said, "this is the first time I have seen you at church for a long time. 'In mighty glad to see you here.'"

"I had to come," replied Rastus, "I needs strengthenin'. I set got a job whitewashin' a chicken coop and buildin' a fence around a watermelon patch."

Earth Not Losing Weight

When coal or other material is mined from the earth the actual weight of the earth is not altered. No such change could be effected unless the gas and smoke into which the coal is changed in combustion escaped entirely from the atmosphere and passed out into space. This does not occur. Although the weight of the earth as a whole is not altered by mining operations, there is no doubt the distribution of weight at the earth's surface is changed.

The thirty-fifth annual reunion of the Maxcy family will be held at the home of Mrs. Aaron Maxcy, Old County Road, Rockland Highlands, Tuesday, August 4th. No postponement.

Action Demanded by Short-Story Readers

"Your work is excellent but unsalable."

In these terse but kindly meant words a literary agent dismissed, a few days ago, a young author who had submitted to him some short stories.

The young author complained later that it was useless to attempt to write artistic stories for the British public, writes a critic in the London Mail.

"I am told that my work is good," he murmured. "But in England there is no demand for work that is above the average. It is necessary to sacrifice ideals in art if you expect to make a living. Every short-story writer has to submit to popular taste if he wishes to sell his stories."

The assumption, of course, was that popular taste is always bad taste. But is it?

There is a certain restricted class of reader who likes to know what people think rather than what they do. Such a reader can find enormous pleasure in books or short stories in which all adventures are adventures of the mind. But by far the greater number of readers of fiction prefer action. They have no patience with the school of writers who believe that to reveal the innermost thoughts of a man or woman who does nothing is the supreme test of artistry.

To expel from the ranks of good books all novels which are novels of action would be to cut out some of the greatest stories written. No longer should we be able to rejoice in the adventures of the Three Musketeers or follow the doing of a David Copperfield.

Popular taste asks for romance, for stories of courage and movement, of human impulses and deep-seated emotions common to us all. Is popular taste wrong?

Scientists Now Know Composition of Atom

Fifty years ago, remarks Sir Oliver Lodge, we did not know the atom had a structure; but it has now delivered up its secret, and is found to consist of very minute and concentrated electric charges revolving round a nucleus, as the planets revolve round the sun. The discovery is quite recent that the same system of law and order that reigns through the heavens holds equally in the interior of the atom, so that there is an atomic astronomy growing up before our eyes, leading us to wonder if there is any limit to smallness any more than there is any limit to bigness, says the London Leader.

Time to Go

Owen owed Rogers $20. Owen had successfully avoided meeting Rogers until now he had had to tilt him. It was quite unavoidable, otherwise the meeting would never have taken place. Trust Owen for that!

They chatted for some minutes on a variety of subjects, and at last Owen, wishing to get away before the subject of the debt was raised, said: "What's the time, old man?"

Rogers pulled out his watch and, regarding it with a frown, replied: "Well, it's about time that you repaid that money."

"Oh," exclaimed Owen in alarm, "I had no idea that it was as late as that. I must be off. Good-by, old man!"

Poet's Odd Experience

There is an instance recorded some time ago of the late poet James Whitcomb Riley's experience, when some strange impulse drew him out of bed and prompted him to write his poem "Bereaved," the simple story of the death of a little child. At the time, Riley had no knowledge that the child of any one in whom he was interested was even seriously ill. He could not imagine why this insistent thought should have come to him. But in his hall a few days later came a letter from his old friend Bill Nye announcing the death of one of his children on the very night that the strange call to write had come to the poet.

Mohammedan Legend

The al boraq was a marvelous animal of surpassing swiftness on which Mohammed is said to have made a nocturnal journey from the temple at Mecca to Jerusalem and hence to the seventh heaven, under the guidance of the angel Gabriel. Its eyes were like stars, and its body was resplendent with precious stones. It had the wings of an eagle, and a human face with the cheeks of a horse. According to Mohammedan faith the al boraq is one of the few animals admitted to heaven.—Kansas City Star.

There's a cottage by the lakeside
Where I love to rest awhile
While the sylvan scenes of summer
All the care and fret beguile;
In the fragrant hedge of cedar
Roses twine and sunbeam play,
Daisies nod and in the branches
Birds are singing all the day.

In the cottage by the lakeside
There is comfort, rest and ease;
Looking from the wide veranda
Rural charm the eye doth please;
There's a view of shining waters
And a simple rustic seat
Where the plums have spread a carpet
Soft and fragrant for the feet.

Full of rustic charm and beauty
Sheltered pathways wind and meet;
Calling from each task and duty
To their haunts of freedom sweet;
Glimpses of the peaceful water
Shifting sun and shadows make
All the witchery of summer
Round the cottage by the lake.

Just a row upon the water
Where the winds are all at rest,
With each scene of beauty mirrored
In the calm and peaceful breast;
So the days pass like a vision,
Each a priceless gift we take,
Bringing health and happy hours
In the cottage by the lake.

When the town is hot and dusty
And no breeze cool the air,
You may hear the song and laughter
Of the guests assembled there;
For there always is a welcome
When life's burdens overtake,
For each friend or passing stranger,
In the cottage by the lake.

Ernest C. Davis of the firm of Fuller-Cobb-Davis had a birthday Sunday, his 68th to be exact, and there was no postponement on account of rain. Even under the inclement weather conditions there could be no better setting for such an event than Anglers' Farm, Mr. Davis' delightful country place, and gathered there were 28 members of the Dunton clan, including four generations, which were grouped thus: First, Mrs. Ellen Burckett, Mrs. Lucy Burton and Mrs. Sophia Velt; second, Fred E. Burckett and family, Mrs. C. J. Burrows and family, Mrs. Clarence Reynolds of Bangor, Mrs. Josephine Mason and family of Dorchester, Charles E. Littlefield and family of Brooklyn and Mrs. Ernest C. Davis; third, Robert E. Payson and family; Jerome and Burton Burrows, Mrs. Lloyd Lawrence and child, Mrs. Estelle Littlefield and Miss Gladys Niles of Bangor; fourth, the children of Robert E. Payson and Lloyd N. Lawrence. A complete list of those present follows: C. E. Littlefield, Effie Dunton Littlefield, E. Estelle Littlefield, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Josephine Dunton Mason, Lela Mason, Dorchester, Mass.; Clarence W. and Sophie Reynolds, Gladys M. Niles, Bangor; C. J. Burrows, L. M. Burrows, Burton Burrows, Madeline B. Lawrence, Edward Lawrence 2nd, Cetta, Rose and Richard Whitmore, Lucy Burton, Sophie J. Velt, Rockland; Ellen Burckett, Fred E. Burckett, Lina M. Burckett, R. E. Payson, Bernice B. Payson, Barbara, Curtis and Carlton Payson, Union. Between showers there was fishing and boating on the pond, but for the most part the Duntonians had to make their own sunshine, among the popular indoor sports being that of "sliding down the haymow." The picnic dinner was a repast which had no minus sign either as to quality or quantity. The Dunton clan is never caught napping in that respect. A huge birthday cake was illuminated with 68 candles, all of which Mr. Davis extinguished with a single effort, thereby demonstrating that his lung power has not deteriorated in passing 68 milestones. And there was also a small birthday cake, with eight candles, burning in honor of Master Dick Whitmore. The oldest member of the Dunton clan present was Mrs. Ellen Burckett, 86, of Union. But young and old they had a grand, good time.

"GOOD BUSINESS"

For State To Lend Credit For Building Kennebec Bridge, Says Portland Express.

One of the most significant and interesting statements made by Gov. Brewster in the course of the addresses made by him on the recent Down East trip was that the receipts of the ferry at Bath showed an increase of 40 per cent during the past June over the June of the previous year. This is a big gain and can only be accounted for by the fact that more tourists are visiting that part of the seacoast between the Kennebec and the Penobscot than last year. The ceremonies incident to the farewell to Explorer MacMillan which called a great many people to Lincoln county may account for part of this increase, but it does not explain the entire 40 per cent, nearly a third more than the year before.

In commenting on the showing made by the ferry during the month the Governor very truthfully said that it supplied further reason for the bridge, as proposed by the resolution upon which the people will vote next September. In fact the increased travel demonstrates conclusively that the building of this bridge will be good business for all of the State. Summer visitors who go to Lincoln and Knox counties do not leave all their business in these counties. Some go there and remain there. But others, and we imagine many more others, visit different places. The shore ride from Portland to Bangor by way of Bath and Rockland is one of the most beautiful in the world. Many hesitate to take it on account of the possible delay at Bath. When there is no interruption, travel over this wonderful route will be increased many fold.

In discussing this subject at Rockland the Governor made another pertinent point. It was that the traffic over the bridge would probably be much greater than had been estimated which would enable the State to pay for the bridge in less time than had been expected. Almost invariably it is true, as the Governor said, that in cases of this sort receipts exceed estimates and there is every reason to believe that this will prove true of this bridge if it is built.

When the structure is paid for, it will be made free and the State will then have for all time this much needed passageway for which not one cent will have been raised by taxation. For the State to have made this bridge free before it had been paid for would not have been sound public policy. For it to lend its credit for the building is good business. There ought not to be a single vote in opposition and we doubt if there will be many.—Portland Express.

STRAND THEATRE

"The Clean Heart," or "The Cruelties of Life," is an adaptation of A. S. M. Hutchinson's famous novel. It was made into a picture by J. Stuart Blackton with an all star cast headed by Percy Marmont, Marguerite de la Motte and Otis Harlan. The story deals with a newspaper editor and novelist who breaks down from overwork and goes out into the world in search of happiness. He encounters many strange adventures, some of which are tragic while others are ludicrous. Critics have pronounced this picture unusual.

"The Clean Heart" is being shown at the Strand the last time today.

THE GLADYS KLARK CO.

Wednesday and Thursday, the Gladys Klark Company will present "St. Elmo," which offers opportunity of seeing the members of the talented Gladys Klark Company at their best. It being one of the most intense plays that have been written in recent years. It is a play that runs the gamut of every human emotion and pictures the range of human feeling. In its dramatic development it dares to tell the truth and in the telling unfolds a story of strength and equal literary merit. Without any attempt at exaggeration, it is a play welcome for its real life interest—a play not depending on the low, the sensational or the vulgar for its success. The author depended solely on truth for his theme and produced a masterpiece—a play which can faithfully be described as an epic of Christianity. In "St. Elmo" the beholder finds himself face to face with the most solemn things which stir the human mind by the grim realities that are laid bare as the story proceeds in surpassing drama.—adv.

PARK THEATRE

Cecil B. DeMille's picturization of "The Ten Commandments" is at the Park Theatre. It has come to us with more superlative advance notices than any other picture which has ever been shown in Rockland. The production takes a little over two hours to show. It is divided into two parts, ancient and modern. In the former the picture opens on the Israelite slaves building the city of Rameses in Egypt. They are being cruelly treated by the Pharaoh, and things look dark until Moses emerges to lead them. He asks for their liberty, and when it is not granted ten plagues are visited upon Egypt. Then follow scenes showing Moses receiving the commandments on the mount, the children of Israel worshipping the golden calf in a wild orgy and finally the fade-out in which Moses, wrathful at seeing his people's treachery, flings the tablets which he had received on the rocks, smashing them into a thousand parts.

A cast of five thousand people is headed by Rod La Rocque, Richard Dix, Leatrice Joy, Agnes Ayers, Nita Naldi, Theodore Roberts, Estelle Taylor, James Neill, Edythe Chapman, Robert Edison and Charles de Roche. It will be shown for the last time today.

William K. Howard, whose epic production "The Thundering Herd" is still fresh in the minds of moviegoers, recently completed another Paramount western based on Zane Grey's powerful frontier story, "The Light of Western Stars," which makes its local debut at the Park Wednesday and Thursday.

The principal characters in this mighty production, which depicts in graphic and stirring fashion the last, desperate stand of banded outlawry on the remaining vestige of frontier America, include a notorious bandit chief, a daring, romantic cowboy and a beautiful Eastern girl, portrayed respectively by Noah Beery, Jack Holt and Billie Dove.—Adv.

Inventor of Copper-Glass Seal Wins Technical Progress Medal

William G. Houskeeper, to Whom the City of Philadelphia Has Awarded John Scott Medal

The City of Philadelphia has awarded to William G. Houskeeper of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, New York, the John Scott medal for his contribution to technical progress. The award carries with it a premium of $1,000 and is made by the City of Philadelphia from the proceeds of a fund left more than one hundred years ago by John Scott of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The achievement for which the medal was awarded to Mr. Houskeeper is the development of a practical method for making an airtight joint between copper and glass. Such a seal has been sought ever since the invention of the electric lamp more than a generation ago required that an electric current be carried into the inside of an exhausted glass bulb. Recent developments in high power radio transmission have required the carrying of even larger currents into vacuum tubes, and the copper-to-glass seal is used in broadcasting equipment manufactured by the Western Electric Company.

It has been known for a long time that these two substances when heated and pressed together will adhere much as taffy will stick to a plate. The fact that on cooling, the copper contracted more rapidly than the glass invariably caused the joint to break and allowed air to leak in and destroy the vacuum.

Since platinum contracts at practically the same rate as glass it has been extensively used for lead-in wires. Its cost, however, is prohibitive where large amounts must be used. Mr. Houskeeper's invention makes it entirely practicable to use copper instead of platinum, thus making the large sized vacuum tubes commercially possible. Many of these tubes have been built by the Western Electric Company and are in use in high powered radio broadcasting stations.

Mr. Houskeeper's invention briefly consists in the discovery that a copper-glass seal fails by the shrinkage of the copper away from the glass and that this shrinkage can be prevented if either of the two substances is thin enough in comparison with the other that it can be stretched or compressed by its heavier team-mate. Due to its greater ductility the copper is usually selected as the element to give.

THE FLARING BRIM

Promises To Be Popular Feature of the Fall Millinery, 'Tis Said.

Millinery shapes are not adhering so closely to the little head-covering type as they have in the past and, says the Dry Goods Economist, while the large hat is not expected to be worn to any great extent for early fall street wear, it is presumed that many will seek the large hat, which is certainly becoming for dressy occasions. The hat with flaring brim that turns off the face gives promise of popularity. Many designers think the well of it, and the leading millinery houses are showing a goodly number of them. Sometimes the shape is developed in a velvet and satin combination, while others are using felt for the crown and a stiffened gros grain ribbon, called garantis, for the brim.

Velour, hatter's plush, velvet and felt are ideal season's best millinery fabrics, velvet most often being used in its entirety, while hatter's plush and velvet are often combined with felt. The new velours with satin finish very much resemble hatter's plush. A striking large hat noted recently had a brim of purple hatter's plush, while yellow felt was employed for the crown. Modernistic motifs that continued down onto the brim were applied on the crown in purple satin.

IN THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

KATHLEEN M. SNOW, LIBRARIAN
Week days: 9 a. m. to 8.30 p. m.

"Hottentots and geniuses can get along without books; you and I need them."

Several years ago an interesting experiment was made in the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburgh. The results showed that a book bound in yellow or orange attracts the attention of the average person just twice as quickly as does a binding of another color. Next to orange a blue binding was chosen and gay red was left for third choice.

For libraries this is significant. In the days of not-so-long-ago a book bound in light cloth was the very epitome of trouble for the librarian. The fact that it was constantly in demand only added to her sorrow, for what a background for dirty finger marks! Today this sorrow is somewhat overcome, thanks to a commercial product known as "Barco" which provides a water-proof, germ-proof coating over the book-cloth. And so it is that libraries can now welcome the book robed in gay colors. Whether or not there is much value in Pittsburgh's experiment, there surely is enough evidence to prove that nothing can more quickly kill the popularity of a good yarn than to put it in the woefully drab bindings to which libraries were loyal in the early twentieth century.

This has been forcibly evidenced this week while the annual taking of stock has been in process. The library owns scores of the best stories that have ever been written, yet they show no records of having been read for several years. One comes to a forlorn little book in that horrible gray-drab buckram, takes it down in disgust, fully prepared to mark it for discard, when lo and behold, 'tis a well-known novel, with print that is readable and large, margins that are a delight to one's eyes, and on paper that is paper and not on a poor imitation of spongy pulp.

The result of the stock-taking has been revolutionary. Hundreds of books have been discarded, but, more important, hundreds have been carefully re-covered in gay new library buckram. As a result of this work the fiction shelves look empty now. Many books for which there is constant demand have necessarily been removed from the collection. We ask the public to be patient, however. Work on re-covering the books is progressing as rapidly as possible and every effort is being made to replace every worth-while novel by a clean new copy with readable print.

From the Framingham Town Library comes an interesting bulletin announcing the titles of books recently published and calling attention to the new library bulletin board which has been placed in the center of the town. From its progressive librarian, Mrs. Edith Bancroft Hayes, comes a letter describing this new feature of library publicity. The case is lighted by electricity, automatically controlled, and is large enough to contain both posters and actual books from the town library.

The demand for books on Evolution bids fair to exceed the recent demand for dictionaries and books of anatomy. For those who would follow a really worth-while course in Biology, the librarian highly recommends, "The A. L. A. Reading course, 'Biology,' edited by Vernon Kellogg. Six books are recommended, all of which have been ordered by the library, and in following this course one has the advantage of opinions and advice of one of the leading scientists of the day. The booklet, which is one of the ten offered in the course 'Reading with a Purpose,' may be borrowed from the library or purchased here for the sum of twenty-five cents.

July 24 was the date for releasing two new novels which will need but little introduction: "A Son of His Father" by Harold Bell Wright and "The Ancient Highway" by James Oliver Curwood. In the words of the New York Times Book Review "Don't push! Don't crowd! Just get into line and wait your turn!"

For the convenience of those who like to reserve books by telephone the following list of new fiction added during June and July is published:
